This is a strong statement that could ring true when attributed to the alarming rising death rates among black women with breast cancer. What I went through was not dissimilar to other patients. It is very hard to see loved ones struggle with a disease like cancer.

The day after I arrived I went to a specialist and got diagnosed with testicular cancer. One man with primary level education perceived that breast cancer is caused by doing things prohibited by Allah God such as taking drugs and alcohol. God Bless and stay strong. It is important that you receive support, as well as your father. Prior to being scanned, your sugar levels are tested and then you are injected with a glucose type injection. A must read for doctors and patients alike!
